Town of Acton Invites the Manufacturing Community to 2022 Spring Manufacturing Summit on Workforce Challenges

ACTON — Town Manager John S. Mangiaratti, Economic Development Director Julie Pierce Onos and the Town of Acton invite the manufacturing community to the 2022 Spring Manufacturing Summit about current workforce challenges.

WHEN:

Wednesday, March 30, from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Doors open at 9 a.m. for networking. To register, click here.

WHERE:

Minuteman Technical Institute, 758 Marrett Road, Lexington

WHAT:

The topic of the 2022 Spring Manufacturing Summit is "Tackling the Labor Shortage Together," and will focus on the current labor shortage.

Employers, education providers, training providers, workforce programs, municipalities, and community organizations will discuss and develop solutions for current workforce challenges.

Panelists include:

- State Rep. Danillo Sena, who lives in and represents Acton
- Daniel Rediger, Head of Naval Operations, Roll-Royce Naval Marine
- Julie Pierce-Onos, Economic Development Director, Town of Acton
- Meghan Burke, Director of School Employment Programs, MassHire Metro South/West Workforce Board
- Sean Marshall, Business Services Manager, MassHire Metro South/West Workforce Board

This "Town Hall" style event is co-hosted by the Town of Acton, the MassHire Metro South/West Career Center, Middlesex Community College, and Minuteman Technical Institute.

All attendees are asked to follow social distancing protocols. Masks are optional.

This event is a continuation of efforts by the Acton Manufacturing Taskforce, which was established in 2019. The taskforce held the Acton Manufacturing Day in 2019, in which high school students toured the Haartz Cooperation facility, where automobile products are made and shipped all over the world. Further community involvement activities were put on pause due to the pandemic, but resumed with a Summit in December 2021 at Middlesex Community College.
